RBC O'Shaughnessy U.S. Value Fund

Commentary

- ▶ In the third quarter of 2008, the RBC O'Shaughnessy U.S. Value Fund posted a return of -5.5%, compared to -8.4% for the S&P 500 Total Return Index, in U.S. dollar terms.
- ▶ Economic turmoil consumed equity markets during the period, with most major indices taking a step back. The markets began to unravel as U.S. government agencies, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, failed to raise equity needed to offset their credit losses and were eventually bailed out by the government in early September. After a brief period of stabilization, focus shifted to Lehman Brothers and its inability to meet the demands of creditors, which led to its eventual collapse. Merrill Lynch was saved by Bank of America, while AIG received help from the government to prevent its probable demise.
- ▶ In response to the fallout, the U.S. government proposed a $700 billion financial rescue plan to help shore up financial markets, which was passed by the U.S. Congress and put into law shortly after period end. Although Financials were the dominant theme for the period, the pullback in Energy was also important to note, as oil moved to under $100 per barrel. The economic turmoil began to spread to other markets after period end.
- ▶ Relative to the benchmark, positions in the Materials sector were beneficial to performance. A slight overweight to the Financials sector was a positive for Fund performance for the quarter, despite the turmoil in the credit markets. Negatively, positions in the Information Technology and Health Care sectors hurt performance during the period.
- ▶ During periods of market downturns, it is common to ask the question: "Is it different this time?" With history and research as our guide, our answer is: "No." While underlying factors driving the turmoil may be different, we do not believe the outcome will be. Volatile markets like today's cause emotional reactions as they create a sense of panic and people begin selling, relegating many investors to the sidelines. When you look at history you will find that the stock market has recovered from every major bear market and myriad economic crises. It has survived wars and a depression that had deep global impact, not to mention the more recent events of terrorist attacks and internet bubbles. It is only the patient investor who generally reaps rewards in times like these.

DISCLAIMER

Please consult your financial advisor and read the prospectus before investing. There may be commissions, trailing commissions, management fees and expenses associated with mutual fund investments. Mutual funds are not guaranteed; their values change frequently and past performance may not be repeated. Except as otherwise noted, the indicated rates of return are the historical annual compounded total returns for the period ended September 30, 2008. The rates of return for periods of less than one year are simple rates of return. All rates of return and performance data include changes in unit value and assume reinvestment of all distributions, and do not take into account sales, redemption, distribution or optional charges or income taxes payable by any unitholders that would have reduced returns. Mutual funds are not guaranteed or covered by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government deposit insurer. For money market funds, there can be no assurances that a fund will be able to maintain its net asset value per security at a constant amount or that the full amount of your investment in a fund will be returned to you. For money market funds, the current yield is an annualized historical yield based on the seven-day period ended on September 30, 2008, and does not represent an actual one year return.
